Product Description

Rehabilitation Pelvic Floor Strengthening Device Female Pelvic Health Pneumatic Pelvic Muscle Trainer For Vaginal Exercise

Overview

- Pelvic Floor Muscle (Figure 1) is composed of muscle fibers of the levator ani, the coccygeus, and associated connective tissue which span the area underneath the pelvis. Pelvic Floor Muscle consists of two types of muscle fibers. Slow twitch fibers: Hold on for long periods- support abdominal organs and also works constantly to keep urine up inside the bladder until a suitable time and place for urination is found. Fast twitch fibers: Designed to act strongly and quickly, but does not hold on for long periods. Acts as an extra closing force during a laugh, cough or sneeze. This extra force stops the bladder muscle (Figure 2), the detrusor, from contracting as well. It puts you in control. Which is the muscle one needs to get hold of.

Product Description

- aimed at gradually increasing the number of muscle contractions, increase the contraction strength. Each sustained muscle contraction .3 seconds, then relax for 3 seconds, when the muscle contraction inhale, exhale to relax. Exercise frequency is determined by you
